Drought Causes Extension Of Farmers Loans

The continued drought of 1964 has resulted in an extension by the Secretary of Agriculture of the authority for the Farmers Home Administration to make Emergency loans in Appomattox County through Dec. 31, 1965. Appomattox is one of 80 counties which were designated last year.

To be eligible, a farmer must be primarily engaged in farming and must have reasonable prospects for success in the farming operation he plans to carry on.

The loans bear three per cent interest. Repayment schedules depend upon the purposes for which the funds are advanced, and the estimated income of the applicant. For example, loans for crop production are usually scheduled for repayment when income from the crops is normally received.

These loans are to supplement, but not replace local credit.

Any farmer who is in need of assistance should contact the Farmers Home Administration office in Farmville. The office is located in the Watson Insurance Building. Hunter P. Evans is the County Supervisor. Mr. Evans also has part-time office hours at Appomattox at the ASCS office on Tuesday morning from 9:00 to 9:30 a.m.

Tobacco Vote To Be Held Dec. 15

Flue - cured tobacco growers will vote next month on marketing quotas for the next three crops, J. A. Martin, Chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County committee, reminded farmers today. The vote is expected to be on Tuesday, December 15, 1964.

Growers eligible to vote in the referendum are all those who produced flue-cured tobacco in 1964 and shared in the crop or its proceeds. Also, each person who was either the owner or operator of a farm for which a 1965 flue-cured tobacco allotment was established is eligible to vote, even though no tobacco was actually produced on the farm in 1964, if an allotment was established for the farm for 1965.

The total supply of flue-cured tobacco for the current marketyear is 3,473 million pounds, including a July 1 carryover of 2,279 million pounds and estimated 1964 production of 1,364 million pounds. The carryover included 485 million pounds of 1963 Government loan. This total supply is an all-time high and represents 3.0 times expected disappearance (domestic usage plus exports).

It is also about 500 million pounds above a desirable level—the level to consider as adequate 2.5 times disappearance. Intensifying our supply problem are the large quantities of high-yielding, producing countries available at

FFA Wildlife Winners Announced

Lonnie Reynolds, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Reynolds, won the annual Robert E. Lee Chapter wildlife contest for FFA members. This makes the third consecutive year that young Lonnie has won the contest.

Other winners in the overall wildlife contest were: Preston Ferguson, second; Albert Carter, third; H. T. Cheatham, fourth; and Gene Cherrault, fifth.

In winning first place, Lonnie Reynolds had a total of 13 feed patches, 10 squirrel boxes, and feeders, 2 borders of grain that had not been harvested, and several duck boxes. "The excellent location of his patches was a major factor in his winning this year," stated H. B. Pack, instructor of vocational agriculture, who judged the patches.

In the single plot competition this year, the winner was David Reeve. Placing second was Irie Mays with Calvin OBrien and David Crews placing third and fourth respectively. Other winners in the wildlife contest were: Mack Coleman and Billy Franklin.

The single plot phase of the contest is opened to 8th and 9th grade students only. The plots were judged on the basis of location, site preparation, sorrmis, sanation, and growth of the seed mixture.

Prizes for the various winners were presented by H. B. Pack, at a regular meeting of the FFA Chapter on Thursday, November 19, The FFA program committee headed by Kenneth Goin devoted the program for the month of Novembe to wildlife conservation. The FFA members who are rural youth have a great interest in hunting; but the program committee called attention to the great need for providing food for wildlife. "We must not only be concerned about wildlife now in the hunting season, but we must do our part to insure an adequate supply for future years," reported Kenneth Goin. "I urge each of you to participate in our wildlife program for the coming year by selecting one or more conservation practices in wildlife," urged the wildlife committee chairman, Gene Cherrault.

Census Enumerators Are Named

Such information is vital in making decisions affecting many segments of the U. S. economy. Data gathered include the number and size of farms, acreage and harvest of crops, livestock inventory. Holts Attend Farm Bureau Meet

NORFOLK — Mr. and Mrs. R. Garland Holt, of Appomattox, of the Appomattox County Farm Bureau, attended the sessions of the 39th annual Convention of the Virginia Farm Bureau Federation at the Monticello Hotel here.

The Convention, a regular feature of the program of the largest general farm organization in the Old Dominion, was attended by other delegates from the 23 county units of the Federation.

Delegates heard Governor Albertis S. Harrison, Jr., in a featured address, plus the Annual Report of the President given by Federation President Robert B. Delano. John C. Lynn, Legislative Director of the American Farm Bureau Federation, discussed national legislative matters with the delegates.

"Farmers Prefer Free Enterprise" Says Farm Bureau President

NORFOLK — "Farmers must make changes," Robert B. Delano, president of the Virginia Farm Bureau Federation, said here in his report to th ...bers of the largest general farm organization in Virginia. His report led off a three day convention in this port city.

Discussing problems facing farmers Mr. Delano said: "... farmers can achieve effective bargaining power and improve their economic condition through the free enterprise route. Individually, the farmer is helpless to do anything about farm problems, the farm leader stated.

Discussing recent changes in farming Delano pointed to capital requirements of modern farming. "The capital required to operate a typical farm ranges from $50,000 to $200,000."

Production wise, the farm leader says farmers are doing well. "Through ... government ... farmer initiative ... and the contributions of commercial companies the farmer had learned to become an efficient producer."

Delano pointed to the formation of marketing cooperatives as one means of marketing these organizations have done much to assist in securing volume buyers for farmers. they," he said, "are not a total solution to the farming problem." In a passing reference to government programs Delano said, "The government solution has not been a satisfactory one to the farmer. the traditional independence of the American farmer ... makes it unacceptable for him to look to government to control his production or control his destiny."

"The primary need of the producer is to coordinate his production ... to the needs of the market. Producer organizations should become interested in integrated marketing operations. ... we realize ... that ... this is a gigantic task ... the farmer must assume his responsibility ... Farmers must become participants in their food distribution system."

Second Mechanic: "I like fabrics; leather is too hard to wipe your hands on."

Local Volunteers Provide Link In People-To-People Lifeline

Virginia and Appomattox County are links in a people-to-people lifeline. This lifeline is extended to those who need it by volunteers participating in the American Red Cross Blood Program.

The program, national in scope provides approximately 50 per cent of all the whole blood collected in the United States.

During the past fiscal year more than 100,000 units of whole blood, including 14,000 units in Virginia, according to Dr. Evan C. Stone, Jr., medical director for Red Cross Eastern Area Blood Program in Alexandria, Virginia. Most of this blood was obtained during bloodmobile visits throughout the state.

The Virginia Blood Program is served by Red Cross Regional Blood Centers in Norfolk and Roanoke, Virginia, and Washington, D. C.

Approximately 90 community and private hospitals throughout the state are aided by the Red Cross Blood Program. In addition, the blood needs of 11 government installations in Virginia are partly met through the program.

Blood is distributed to participating hospitals as whole blood or its components; plasma, platelets, packed red cells, and other derivatives.

Although there is no charge for the blood itself, clinics and hospitals may share with Red Cross the cost of collecting, processing, and distributing the blood. A portion of this cost may be passed along to the patient. However, there is never any charge to patients in military, Veterans Administration or Public Health Service hospitals.

Next visit for the Bloodmobile here is February 1.
